HOMES THAT MAKE WAVES

Three homes on the market in Hawaii, Oregon and Florida with sweeping views of the ocean

$7.95 million

Big Island, Hawaii

Four bedrooms, four bathrooms, one half-bath
A 66-foot infinity swimming pool, surrounded by banana and mango trees, looks out over vistas of Kukio Bay. The 5,073-square-foot home features floor-to-ceiling automatic pocket doors that open to the garden and ocean. The interior, by the Henderson Design Group, is outfitted with Venetian plaster as well as African mahogany doors, windows and millwork.
Agent: Robert Kildow, Hualalai Realty

$12.75 million

Palm Beach, Fla.

Four bedrooms, five bathrooms, one half-bath
This 5,942-square-foot Mediterranean-style home, built in 2006, is less than a mile from Emerald Beach. A cabana with a hot tub, a pool and a covered barbecue deck overlooks the ocean. The stark white interior—save for a media room decorated with red walls and cabinetry—is lined with dark-stained terra-cotta floor tiles.
Agent: Allison Wren, Corcoran Group

$9.995 million

Gold Beach, Ore.

Four bedrooms, five bathrooms
This rustic 10,000-square-foot home was built on 28 acres from old-growth logs and naturally sourced materials. It has floor-to-ceiling windows and balconies that offer views of the Rogue River-Siskiyou National Forest and the Pacific Ocean. The property also has a private helipad landing and deeded beach access.
Agent: Ted Wood, Sotheby's International Realty
